Vienna, Nov. 5. The Emperor, as we are told, continues his resolution of parting hence the 19 instant to Lints, from whence he will remove to Passaw, to celebrate his marriage there the 9th of December; and on the 15th of January their Imperial Majesties will return hither. The last week by Letters from Cracow we had an account of the conclusion of a Peace between the King of Poland and the Turks, at a time when that King was reduced to very great streights, and was so beset by the Infidels, that the whole Kingdom seemed to be in pain for him; but it appears by the honourable Conditions obtained by the Poles that if their affairs were not in a very good posture, those of their Enemies were not in a much better, and that they desired a Peace as much as the Poles.

Copenhagen, Nov. 7. The two Armies continue in the Field, the Suedes on the other side of Helmstadt, and ours on this; the former pretend to put a succor into Malmoe, which place hath been blocked up several months, and to that end they have a great many Wagons laden with Provisions, but our Forces will have a watchful eye upon them to prevent the said design. In the mean time our Army suffers very much, by being obliged to continue in the Field so late in the year, and the Soldiers are very desirous to come to some action which may determine the Campagne, and let them enjoy their Winter-quarters in quiet. The 3d instant our King was at Christianstadt, where, it's said, his Majesty means to remain, till the Suedes are retired so far, as not to give him any farther jealousie for this year. Here are fitting out some light Frigats, who are to Cruise this Winter upon the Coast of Pomeren, to hinder all communication between those parts and Sueden. The Suedes, we hear, will likewise have some of their smaller ships at Sea.

Hamburg, Nov. 13. We cannot as yet make any judgement concerning the issue of the Siege of Stetin, though the general opinion is, that his Electoral Highness will not be able to go through with it at this season; for we are told, the Inhabitants, though they have suffered very much by the Besiegers Cannon, yet do not in the least abate in their courage and resolution to defend the place to the last extremity.

Schafhuysen, Nov. 7. The Imperial Army has for some time been encamped near Rhinfelden, and at present their Generals seem to have quitted all thoughts of passing the Rhine, however the Cantons keep the men, they assembled upon the first alarm still together, thinking that the best way to maintain their Neutrality, while the Armies continue in their Neighborhood. The Electoral Prince of Saxony arrived here 7 or 8 days since, and parted not till this morning, being gone to the Army; during his stay here, our Magistrates presented him with several Tuns of Wine of the growth of this Countrey, and 12 Sacks of Oats for his Horses. The Boors of the Swart Walt kill many of the Imperial Soldiers daily, in revenge of the spoils and ravages committed by them.

Strasburg, Nov. 8. The Imperial Army continues to have its quarters between Friburg and Rhinfelden, though we are assured that it will decamp the 15 or 16 instant, and march towards Suabia and Franconia in order to the going into Winter-quarters. It is thought the French will not remain in the Field long after them, yet in the mean time three Regiments are marched from Saverne to join the Duke of Luxemburg. Two parties,
